The Fields are Alive ...

.... with the sound of buzzing! Yes, it was another bee-zee couple of days on the farm. We caught yet another swarm, only to lose them the next day – or so we thought!

What we actually witnessed was a Virgin Queen taking a mating flight. She soon returned with her own hive.

With the increase in number of hives, we decided to expand our bee yard!

So off we went to pick up skids (to keep the boxes comfortably off the ground, which we dug out and leveled), and then off to the bee box experts to get more boxes! Good job ladies!

Bed & Breakfast
Organic Farm

Lana found a baby Snapping Turtle on the lawn by the Farm Stand today. We released it into the marsh. After putting it gently on the ground, we watched it scamper quickly along the shoreline and then dive into the water. It promptly found a rock to hide behind. So cute!

Hey, put me down!!!
